Juan Felipe Herrera, Poet and Writer

For the last 35 years, Juan Felipe has been writing, publishing, reading, performing, leading workshops, organizing literary broadsides, journals, and publications in home communities and universities in California and the Pacific Northwest. He has over 100 articles, poems, reviews, essays in print.

"Herrera's new book is an agonized, hallucinatory chronicle of a couple's infatuation set during the L.A. riots... Movie-like treatment of images—jumpcuts, montages, and dissolves—drives this cinematographic tour de force and compels rapt reading at one sitting."

—Harvard Review

In 1993, she began formal training in voice with operatic tenor Flavio Becerra in Guadalajara, where she also sang contralto in the opera chorus conducted by maestro Becerra and concentrated her studies in operatic singing and acting. In 1999, Ana moved to the United States and for two seasons she sang with the Florida Philharmonic Chorus. She relocated to Redlands in the summer of 2001 and her interest in the performing arts continues to grow.
