

Emily Rapp

April 10 2012. 3:30 PM – 5 PM, INTS 1113

Emily Rapp, a former Fulbright scholarship recipient, was educated at Harvard University, Saint Olaf College, Trinity College-Dublin, and the University of Texas at Austin, where she was a James A. Michener Fellow. She has received awards and recognition for her work from The Atlantic Monthly, StoryQuarterly, the Mary Roberts Rinehart Foundation, the Jentel Arts Foundation, the Corporation of Yaddo, the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown, and the Valparaiso Foundation. Her work has appeared in The Los Angeles Times, Salon, The Sun, and many other publications. Emily has taught writing in the MFA program at Antioch University, Los Angeles. She is currently professor of Creative Writing and Literature at the Santa Fe University of Art & Design in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Professor Rapp will give a talk on her new book Dear Dr. Frankenstein: A Love Story, and discuss issues surrounding disability and the body.

Dear Dr. Frankenstein: A Love Story

Dear Dr. Frankenstein: A Love Story uses one mother's story of parenting a terminally ill baby as a prism through which to shed light on the most important questions about how to live. This book is about one baby's short life, and what that unique and remarkable life has taught me about being a mother, and most of all, about being a human being.

Sponsored by the Center for Ideas and Society through a generous grant by the Andrew W. Mellon Workshops in the Humanities