From Bench to Byline: Building a Career
in Medical Communications

Clare Miller, Ph.D.
Medical Writer
Havas Health Network

Clare Miller is a PhD-trained scientist with hands-on experience working in medical communications across a range of therapeutic areas. Drawing on her own transition from academia to industry, she'll share practical insights into what medical communicators do, how the field differs from traditional research roles, and the skills employers look for. This session will offer concrete advice on breaking into med comms, including career pathways, resume framing, and common entry points in the industry.
