VISITING LECTURER(S) IN ENVIRONMENTAL ANALYSIS
FALL SEMESTER 2021

Scripps College, a women's liberal arts college with a strong interdisciplinary tradition, invites applications for the position of part-time Visiting Lecturer in Environmental Analysis. We need to staff two courses: EA10: Introduction to Environmental Analysis and EA86: Environmental Justice in the Fall 2021 semester. EA10 examines the history of environmental change over the past century, the environmental ramifications of economic and technological decisions, lifestyles and personal choice, and the need to evaluate environmental arguments critically. Students consider the complexities and conflicts between the economic development, population growth, and environmental resources by through selected readings, class discussions, interactive lectures, multimedia, written papers, quizzes, and problem sets. EA86 critically examines the Environmental Justice movement in the United States: its history, central claims, frameworks, and methods for analyzing race, class, and the environment, environmental justice campaigns, and ongoing struggles. Students learn to evaluate the race and equity implications of environmental harms and discuss approaches to counteract environmental injustice.

Ph.D. preferred. Evidence of successful teaching experience is required, along with vita, statement of interest, course proposal/syllabus, and two letters of reference. Please submit to https://theclaremontcolleges.wd1.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/SCR_Careers_Faculty/job/Balch-Hall/Visiting-Lecturer-in-Environmental-Analysis_REQ-3106

Review of applications will begin on June 4 and continue until the position is filled. For more information, contact Kimberly Drake at kdrake@scrippscollege.edu
