Title:

“Landing a non-entomology job with the Resource Conservation District”

Abstract:

Sheena Sidhu (UCR Post-doc 2014-2016) will share her path of trying several jobs before landing her dream job with the San Mateo Resource Conservation District (RCD) in a position outside the field of entomology. RCDs are "the most important public agencies you've likely never heard of," (SF Chronicle), and can be a promising career option for PhDs that excel at extension, project management, grant writing, and fast-paced work in conservation and climate resiliency. Sheena will share how your entomology skills are transferable for conservation
