“Finding my career path in mosquito control”

Abstract:

There are a number of ways to have a successful career in mosquito control. In California, most vector control careers are either at special districts or within county programs. Despite using similar language across agencies, the job requirements and responsibilities can vary widely. I'll discuss some of the items to look at when applying for a job within California mosquito control, skills that are helpful, and the opportunities for collaboration and coordination across district boundaries.
