okay this is a CALL FOR ESSAY PITCHES!

I'm looking for freelance writers for Reactor Mag, a long-running SFF website (formerly tor dot com not the publisher). Im the senior editor for book content, focusing on contemporary sci-fi, fantasy, gothic, horror, and genre-defying books.

I am not able to publish your manuscript.

I'm looking for nonfiction — critical or personal essays pertaining to contemporary SFF. Not currently looking for individual book reviews.

Please send a full pitch + relevant clips to christina dot orlando @ reactormag

Right now I'm most excited to see work from marginalized voices and love to feature trans/nonbinary writers whenever possible!

Looking for work that recontextualizes beloved sff texts, looks critically at trends/tropes, and isn't afraid to be nerdy! love academic-leaning essays.

Love essays that align sff with larger cultural/political conversations, personal essays about special reading experiences, & nonwestern worldviews

Especially looking for close reads of "hidden gem" sff/h books, mostly pre-2020 releases. your "why didn't we talk about this more?" book
